EMBEZZLING CLERK

RAN STOLEN $2,000
UP TO $6,000 ROLL

Thrifty Young Man's Bank Account Will Be Able to Make Restitution.

When embezzling clerks are found out they usually tell a story of wine, women and gambling, and have only a list of debts to show for the peculations; but Albert Rees, twenty-two, a bookkeeper, of No. 989 Tinton Avenue, the Bronx, is not in that class. He is a thrifty young man with a good bank account, and he claims he has invested stolen funds so successfully that he has made over 200 per cent. profit.

Rees was employed by Lanigan Brothers, contractors at One Hundred and Sixty-fifth Street and Bronx River. Yesterday one of his employers went to their bank and found that he had failed to deposit $400 in checks given him in the morning.

Investigation disclosed that checks aggregating $3,000 had never reached the bank, and then Rees was arrested. The police say he admitted that for two years he had been depositing the firm's checks to his own credit.

He told Detectives Riley and Thompson that his employees would lose nothing, as he had the money and could make restitution. Then he went to the Cosmopolitan Bank, on Westchester Avenue, the Bronx, and the detectives learned that he had a bank account of more than $6,000.

"I made $4,000 of it speculating with the other $2,000 which I got," the detective says he explained, but when he was questioned further he refused to tell of the investments which had gained him the money. He said he only wanted to run his bank account up to $10,000 and then he would have made restitution of what he had taken. He was locked up.

CAN'T IDENTIFY SUSPECT AS BRONX HIGHWAYMAN

Detectives Say New Suit and Eyeglasses Act as Disguise for Flanagan.

John Flanagan of No. 302 East One Hundred and Fourth Street, under arrest on suspicion of being concerned in the $4,500 hold-up of Supt. Thomas J. Boyd and Cashier William Lishardt in Park Avenue, the Bronx, on Monday, was arraigned in West Farms Police Court before Magistrate

Appleton to-day. In an ante-room were assembled ten persons who saw the robbery and presumably could identify one of the three highwaymen. When arrested Flanagan wore a blue serge suit. To-day he wore in court a new gray suit and a pair of eyeglasses which had been supplied to him while in jail. The identification witnesses all failed to pick out Flanagan. This was quite distressing to the detectives who arrested Flanagan. They insisted that his change of clothes and his adoption of eyeglasses had altered his appearance so that he was virtually in disguise. Neither Boyd nor Lishardt was in court, and Flanagan agreed to an adjournment until next Tuesday, when the cashier and superintendent will look him over. His bond of $25,000 was continued.

CHILD FATALLY BURNED.

Lets Clothing Get Too Near Fire in Her New Toy Stove.

While building a fire in a new toy stove in the rear yard of her home, No. 228 Prospect Avenue, Brooklyn, to-day, Edna May Frost, five years old, let her clothing get too near the flames. Suddenly she sprang back with a shriek and children with whom she was playing saw her clothing was ablaze. Edna's mother and several neighbors seized the flame-engulfed child and wrapped her in blankets, smothering the blaze. Policeman Francis McGreevey entered the yard, picked up little Edna, hurried out into Prospect Avenue, halted the first automobile that passed and ordered the driver to run to the Samaritan Hospital. It was said there she probably would die.
